Abstract

Extragenital endometriosis is a rare expression of the disease more frequently described and pictured in old medical books .

We report 3 Cases of extragenital endometriosis ( abdominal wall and perineum) seen and treated in our teaching hospital in the last three years .

this is a way to remind medical students , residents and practionners of the possible diagnosis of endometriosis in its extragenital form in case of cyclic parietal pain along with a sub dermal tumor in women with a history of cesarean and women with a cyclic painful perineal tumor after normal birth.
